CANADA AND HAWAII MEETING PLANS ANNOUNCED

IT happens only "once in a social work lifetime," but the Seattle meeting of the National Conference of Social Work will afford delegates an opportunity to combine three distinctive Conferences in one extended trip.

The National Conference and associate groups will meet in Seattle from June 26 to July 2.

Immediately preceding the Annual Meeting, the Canadian Conference on Social Work will convene in Vancouver, B. C. The dates are June 21 to 23.

Following the Seattle meeting, the Territorial Conference of Social Work will hold its 18th annual meeting in Honolulu. The revised dates, including training institutes and the conference, are July 14 to 20.

From George F. Davidson of Vancouver, secretary of the Canadian Conference, comes the following statement relating to the Canadian session:

"The attention of persons planning to attend meetings of the National Conference of Social Work in Seattle is drawn to the fact that the Canadian Conference on Social Work has also arranged to meet on the West Coast, just before the Seattle meeting. The meeting place will be Vancouver, B. C., and the dates, June 21 to 23. Vancouver is 150 miles due north of Seattle, and it is possible for persons going from the East to buy a round trip ticket through Vancouver without any additional expense.

"The Canadian Conference is anxious to draw a representative group not only from Canadian territory but also from the United States. The program is designed to deal with typically Canadian problems in so far as possible, but since the problems of social work know no national boundaries, it is expected that there will be many papers on the program which will be of interest to workers in the public and private agencies of the United States.

"The conference program has been built around six main divisions: Children's Services, Health Services, Family Services, Mental Hygiene, Public Assistance and Public Welfare Administration. Formal papers are confined to the morning sessions and the larger general sessions in the evenings, with the afternoon sessions being devoted entirely to round table discussions arising out of the morning meetings.

"Attendance at the Canadian Conference usually numbers about four hundred at the maximum, providing ample opportunity in the small groups for discussion and personal consultation. Further information can be obtained by writing the secretary, 1675 W. 10th Ave., Vancouver, B. C."

From the Territorial Conference comes this statement:

"An invitation is extended delegates to visit Hawaii and participate in the Territorial Conference of Social Work in Honolulu immediately following the Seattle meeting. A chance to see social work in a most unusual inter-racial situation, with a stimulating conference program in a new setting, where the social problems are acute but manageable, is not one to be missed.

"The trip out must be made on the Steamer Niagara leaving Victoria, B. C., July 5. Return can be made on any of the following ships: S. S. Lurline, leaving Honolulu July 16; S. S. Aorangi, July 22; S. S. Matsonia, July 23; S. S. Empress of Japan, August 4. The first three land at San Francisco and Los Angeles; the Empress of Japan at Victoria. Round trip fares range from a minimum of $150 in cabin class and $220 first class.

"The dates are: professional training institutes, July 14 to 16; 18th Annual Social Work Conference, July 18 to 20.

"Preliminary institutes will be set up for social case workers, group workers and probation and parole officers. A similar institute for plantation welfare workers also is proposed. An authority in each field is being imported for leadership. The conference proper will deal with the following subjects: Dependency, Delinquency, Industrial Problems, Inter-relation of Group and Case Work, Mental Hygiene and Cooperative Medical Service.

"Hotel arrangements, American plan, may be had from $2.50 per day up. It is not too early to make steamer and hotel reservations, and it is especially important that return accommodations be provided for because of heavy bookings at that time of the year. For further information address Janice Bowen, Social Service Bureau, Honolulu, Hawaii."

The Territorial Conference advised the National Conference that it has made special arrangements with the steamship companies for conference delegates and asks that all reservations be made from the Honolulu office of the Territorial Conference.

What to Wear

IF you have been wondering what type of clothes to wear for maximum comfort during Seattle's summer season, here are some helpful hints provided by the Seattle Chamber of Commerce after consultation with local fashion experts.

Seattle has a comfortable and mild summer climate, with an average temperature of 62 degrees. The temperature very seldom rises above a maximum of 85 degrees and seldom falls below 54.

"Women dress in white a great deal in Seattle during the summer, no matter whether it is near the maximum or minimum temperature," our informant advises. "It is necessary for them to wear light coats oftentimes at night, however. Fashion experts say most travelers find their usual summer wear adaptable to the Seattle climate, but advise they carry one heavier garment.

"Men's lightweight and sports suits are largely predominant in Seattle in the summer, as in most other places, and Palm Beach suits are worn to some degree."

SEATTLE IN JUNE: A PREVIEW

What the Conference Delegate Would Do upon Arriving to Attend the Sixty-fifth Annual Meeting

IT is Sunday morning, June 26, 1938. You have just arrived in Seattle aboard one of America's most comfortable air-conditioned trains which only a few brief hours . . . or minutes . . . earlier was pulling steadily through high mountain passes, driving through great stands of giant firs and cedars, edging swift mountain streams and sweeping past rolling green farmlands. You have crossed some of the continent's highest mountains. You have seen some of its greatest timberlands. You have seen snowy peaks and you have seen hills bright with Scotch broom and rhododendron. From your train windows you have viewed scenic panoramas that leave you still tingling with the realization of such grandeur.

(You would have seen these same scenes if you were to have come by automobile over the smooth, broad highways or traveled on one of the big transcontinental or coastwise air liners.)

You are in Seattle upon an occasion which marks the twenty-fifth anniversary of the first visit of the National Conference of Social Work to that Western metropolis. You are there to attend the 65th Annual Meeting of the National Conference. And you have a very big and important time ahead.

How fortunate that you had mailed your request for hotel reservations some time before your arrival! You go to your hotel—where you are expected—register, and very briefly and easily are established in your Seattle living quarters.

(Is there someone in your party who had decided at the last minute to attend the Annual Meeting or who had neglected to make hotel reservations—but in either case has no accommodations? He or she will visit the Housing Bureau at Conference Headquarters where local people, especially trained for such emergencies, will go right to work taking care of that housing problem.)

Several hours are to elapse before the Annual Meeting makes its official bow with the first general session. Social workers from all parts of the United States and Canada are streaming into the city. You see friends and acquaintances on downtown streets, in the hotels and at Conference headquarters. You have a chance to exchange greetings with colleagues you haven't seen since the last Annual Meeting or the one before or several meetings ago. In the hotel lobbies you see knots of delegates from widely separated communities already engaged in pleasantly serious conversations concerning similar problems. You meet men and women you have known and read about—perhaps through their articles in The Survey or their other published works. You recognize men and women in public social work—federal, state and local—and private social work whose agencies represent the whole gamut of social service. You see administrators, executives and staff workers.

Having established yourself in your hotel and exchanged a few cordial greetings, you go to Conference Headquarters in the Senator Auditorium, situated in the downtown area, a brief walk from most of the hotels designated for Conference use. Going there, you stroll past some of the many attractive shops and stores in the city.

Reaching headquarters, you go at once to the registration desk where in a surprisingly short time you have completed your registration and have received your complete program of meetings of the National Conference and the Associate groups. The program is your "Bible" for the week, obtained only when you register. Nearby is the information desk, a veritable fund of information on the "hows," "whys" and "whats" of Conference week. More conversations. A visit to the Consultation service and exhibit booths.

Perhaps you wish to go to one of the several downtown churches. Perhaps you decide to attend a session of one of the few associate groups which have started in advance of the opening of the Conference meeting. Perhaps you choose to spend the remainder of the day sightseeing, taking a steamer trip on Puget Sound or Lake Washington, wandering to the waterfront or Chinatown, seeing the Government locks or the public beaches or a number of other attractions.

The day passes quickly enough. As evening comes you head for the Civic Auditorium where the first general session opens at 8:30 o'clock. Conference delegates and local citizens fill the large auditorium. The preliminaries over, the Conference president steps up to deliver his address. The 65th Annual Meeting of the National Conference of Social Work is on; in the morning the section and committee sessions open on all fronts . . .

Consultation Service Planned

WHEN you go to Conference headquarters in Seattle to register or to check up on general activities do not fail to visit Consultation Service. Most of the associate groups and many other agencies will maintain booths there. You can discuss problems of your agency, learn how other agencies function and gather new ideas. Consultation service will be in the Senator Auditorium, and a few minutes visit may repay your trip to Seattle. The following organizations have reserved booths at Conference headquarters:

American Association of Medical Social Workers.
 American Association of Schools of Social Work.
 American Association of Social Workers.
 American Association of Visiting Teachers.
 American Birth Control League.
 American Home Economics Association, Social Welfare and Public Health Department.

How and Where to Register

EVERY person who attends the Seattle meeting should register at Conference headquarters in the Senator Auditorium and obtain an admission card to National Conference of Social Work sessions.

National Conference members in good standing and designated representatives of member agencies will pay no additional fee. Non-members when registering will become Conference members in at least the minimum classification of $3. Persons attending but one day's sessions will be permitted to pay a registration fee of $1 and receive credentials entitling them to admission to sessions on that day.

In order to facilitate registration procedure, members should take along their membership cards and show them at the registration booth. The cards also will be needed for voting purposes, as they will be required for admission to the business session. In most cases the cards of members entitled to vote bear a proper notation. Qualified voters who paid their last fee prior to December 1, 1937, should have their membership cards stamped at the registration desk.

Railroad Rates

IN reply to inquiries asking whether special railroad rates will be available to the Seattle meeting, it is announced that since general passenger rate reductions were introduced more than a year ago, railroads no longer offer special convention fares. Western transcontinental railroads to Seattle maintain low fares in three classes of travel, however, which afford surprisingly reasonable transportation costs.

Check up on rates with your local railroad office. It might help you in deciding to attend the Annual Meeting.

Housing Committee Will Aid

IF you arrive in Seattle without hotel accommodations or wish to make changes after reaching the city, see the Hotel and Housing Committee at once. The committee will be on duty at Conference headquarters at the Senator Auditorium and will be glad to assist you in obtaining satisfactory accommodations.

Space Available on Special Train

THERE still is time to make reservations on the special New York-Seattle trains sponsored and being handled by Survey Associates, according to Mollie Condon of The Survey. All-expense scenic side trips are being provided as one of the attractions. Requests for information should be addressed to Miss Condon at The Survey offices.

Note: Suites mean two rooms with connecting bath.

Certain Hotels will place cots in rooms at additional cost. Write to A. J. Barash, Hotel Mens Association, Green Bldg., Seattle, Wash., for details.

RESERVE HOTEL ROOMS NOW

RESERVE your hotel rooms in Seattle now. You will have the advantage of better selection than if you delay and will eliminate the problem of finding living quarters after you arrive to attend the Annual Meeting. Because the number of available single rooms is diminishing daily, it is suggested that wherever possible, persons reserve double rooms and plan to share them with roommates.

Send your application for reservations on the form printed below, indicating hotels of first, second and third choice. Send applications to A. J. Barash, Hotel Men's Association, 708 Green Building, Seattle. The hotel in which your reservation is made will confirm your order. The Association can assume responsibility only for reservations made through its office and in hotels specified for Conference use.

Because of the difficulties encountered last year through large numbers of advance reservations made but neither cancelled nor kept, and in line with the practice of hotels in Seattle, a deposit of the amount of the first night's rate will be required with the reservation. If the reservation is cancelled before June 15 the money will be returned promptly. It is important to notify the hotel by letter or wire of any change in your date of arrival. The hotels are cooperating with us to avoid difficulties. Please cooperate with them by giving exact dates of arrival and departure and notifying them immediately of any necessary changes in your plans.
